Obituary

Kirl Williams Jr., nicknamed Junior "Chili," was born on August 8, 1947 to Kirl and Minnie Mae Williams in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. He was baptized in the name of Jesus Christ at Christ Temple Church in Oklahoma City.

Junior graduated from Douglass High School, achieved some college hours in Business Administration, but was drafted in the United States Marines at an early age. After sixteen years of military service (four years active duty and twelve years reserve), he received an honorable discharge and began working at Tinker Air Force Base (AFB), specializing in sheet metal. After retirement from Tinker AFB, he decided to become a contractor. He freelanced his services as an Interior Aircraft Mechanic, specializing in sheet metal for major airlines, private planes, including private planes of kings and princes from other countries. After traveling for a while as an Aircraft Mechanic, he decided to land his feet in Mobile, Alabama where he married Jacara Komperda and decided to stay.

Junior very much loved his family and what really makes him an incredible man was how he raised his three children (two sons and a daughter) by himself. He raised them as babies and now they are all grown-up shining like their father in the most important ways in life, being respectful, grateful, kind, and loving to everyone. People say it take a village to raise children, but what it really takes is a small tight-knit family with the grace of God. Later, Junior had four more children (three sons and a daughter). Like we said before, he really loves family.

Junior is survived by two daughters, Nyree Bratton (Quintus), Houston, Texas and Chante Williams, Charlotte, North Carolina; five sons, Kirl Williams III, Mobile, Alabama, Gemel Williams, Palm Bay, Florida, Romulus Bryant, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Arshad Bryant, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and Kristopher Williams, San Antonio, Texas; one brother, Gary Williams (Viola), Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; and one sister, Annette Ellis (Joe), Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; six grandchildren, several nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.
